Scottish Parliament backs bid for new independence referendum

EDINBURGH: The Scottish Parliament voted on Tuesday to back First Minister Nicola Sturgeon's bid to hold a new independence referendum in late 2018 or 2019, once the terms of the UK's exit from the European Union have become clearer.

The Edinburgh assembly's vote, which was widely expected, gives Sturgeon a mandate to seek permission from the British parliament in London to press forward with preparations for a referendum.

Scotland voted against independence in a 2014 referendum, but Sturgeon argues circumstances have changed since then because the UK as a whole voted to leave the European Union while Scotland voted strongly to remain in the bloc. The motion, put forward by Sturgeon, was passed by 69 votes in favour and 59 votes against in the Scottish parliament.

Sturgeon said the move is needed to allow Scotland to decide what path to follow in the wake of the Brexit vote. But the UK government has already said it will block a referendum until the Brexit process has been completed. Prime Minister Theresa May, who met Sturgeon for talks in Glasgow on Monday, has repeatedly insisted that "now is not the time" for a referendum. Her Scottish secretary, David Mundell, has said that the timescale could include "the Brexit process, the journey of leaving and people being able to understand what the UK's new relationship with the EU is, so they can make an informed choice if there was ever to be another referendum".

Sturgeon, the Scottish first minister, told a debate ahead of the Holyrood vote that she was not seeking confrontation with the UK government, and only wanted "sensible discussions".

She said: "My argument is simply this: when the nature of the change that is made inevitable by Brexit becomes clear, that change should not be imposed upon us, we should have the right to decide the nature of that change." The people of Scotland should have the right to choose between Brexit possibly a very hard Brexit — or becoming an independent country, able to chart our own course and create a true partnership of equals across these islands."

She added: "I hope the UK government will respect the will of this parliament. If it does so, I will enter discussion in good faith and with a willingness to compromise. "However, if it chooses not to do so I will return to the parliament following the Easter recess to set out the steps that the Scottish government will take to progress the will of parliament." The two-day debate in the Scottish Parliament started last week but was suspended as news of the terror attack at Westminster emerged. MSPs were asked to mandate the Scottish government to take forward discussions with the UK government on the details of a section 30 order, which is needed to make a referendum legally binding.

Sturgeon is expected to make the formal request for a section 30 later this week — after May formally starts the Brexit process by triggering Article 50. AGENCIES

London Mayor wants EU nationals to remain in United Kingdom

BRUSSELS: Mayor of London Sadiq Khan on Tuesday stepped up calls for the British government to offer a "cast-iron guarantee" to European Union (EU) nationals on their right to remain in the UK after Brexit, a media report said on Tuesday.

Speaking at an event in Brussels, Khan said an offer to 3.3 million EU nationals, one million of whom are Londoners, would be "the perfect gesture of goodwill" and urged the rest of the EU to make the same move, the Guardian said in the report.

Khan is visiting the Belgian capital a day before the British government plans to trigger the two-year process that will end Britain's EU membership in 2019.

"A bad Brexit deal that hurts London would hurt the European Union too," he said.

He evoked supply chain disruptions and businesses quitting London for New York or Singapore, rather than heading to Paris or Frankfurt.

"A hard Brexit really is a lose-lose situation," he added. During his stay, Khan will meet Jean-Claude Juncker, the President of the European Commission, and Antonio Tajani, the President of the European parliament, the Guardian report said.

Speaking days after EU leaders, minus British Prime Minister Theresa May, celebrated 60 years of European unity, Khan praised the bloc, describing it as the foundation for peace and a symbol that countries could work together. "In London, we will always consider ourselves part of the European family," he added. AGENCIES

UK daily's front page slammed as 'sexist, offensive'

LONDON: UK tabloid Daily Mail's frontpage showing a photograph of Scottish First Minister Nicola Sturgeon and British premier Theresa May has been slammed as "sexist and offensive", the media reported on Tuesday.

The frontpage captioned "Never mind Brexit, who won Legs-it!", appeared on Twitter on Monday night, the Guardian reported.

Inside the paper there was more ogling at the female leaders, with a headline reading: "Finest weapons at their command? Those pins!"

A column by Sarah Vine referred to Sturgeon's legs as "altogether more flirty, tantalisingly crossed... a direct attempt at seduction".

Among the first to criticise were Labour MPs Harriet Harman and Yvette Cooper.

Journalist Alastair Campbell, labelled the paper "utter scum" and urged anyone who spotted a copy of the Mail to rip it up, the Guardian reported.

The former Labour leader Ed Miliband tweeted: "The 1950s called and asked for their headline back".

The front page, which referenced difficult talks between the leaders in Glasgow over Brexit, looked slightly different in Scotland, where it used the same photograph but with a headline that read: "Oh so frosty! Secrets of Nicola and PM's talk-in". AGENCIES

Dhaka univ students begin operation to drive out Islamist fanatics

GAUTAM LAHIRI

DHAKA: After successful army commando operation "Twilight" to eliminate four militants from Sylhet, Dhaka students began a new operation to drive out Islamic fanatics away from their country. On Tuesday, a group of Indian journalists, currently visiting Dhaka at the invitation of Bangladesh Foreign Ministry, witnessed a massive demonstration inside the Dhaka University campus.

Students from most of the departments started a procession inside the campus and finally assembled at the historical Madhuda's canteen. They were raising slogans demanding direct action by the Hasina government against the Islamic fundamentalists.

Students raised slogans against the Pakistan government which is allegedly supporting the all extremist organisation of Bangladesh.

Interestingly, when the Indian journalists tried to get some reaction about the proposed visit of Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina to India and to know about the expectation on Teesta river water sharing agreement, President of Dhaka students' union Abid-al-Hasan answered candidly that they have left this matter to the government and at this moment they are more concerned about radicalisation of extremists.

They feel as India stood behind the liberation struggle, they should extend their hand to the secular Awami league government to drive out the militants from their Sonar Bangla.

The historical Madhuda's canteen was on Tuesday full of students discussing about their future course of action. Bangladeshi youth, irrespective of religion are united in their mission against fundamentalists.

Girls wearing traditional hijabs also participated in the movement. Interestingly, Madhuda was Madhusudan Dey who was a born Hindu. He was murdered by the Pakistani army on March 26, 1971. A few years ago, a bust of Madhuda was installed here. The bust was garlanded with flowers.

Next month, Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina will be visiting India after a gap of seven years. But in most of the media, the main focus has been about signing the much awaited Teesta river water sharing agreement. But people of Bangladesh know that the relation between India and Bangladesh has reached a level from where it cannot be seen through the prism of one or two agreements. AGENCIES

WORLD BRIEFS

3 DIE AS FERRY SINKS IN BANGLADESH

DHAKA: At least three women were killed and dozens went missing when a ferry capsized in Panguchi river in Bangladesh on Tuesday. The overloaded ferry, with around 40-50 passengers, sank in Bagerhat district, 178 km from here, Xinhua news agency quoted Fire Service and Civil Defence officer Masud Sarder as saying. Sarder said a search for the missing persons was under way. Many of the passengers managed to swim ashore after the capsizing. Ferry and boat disasters are common in Bangladesh, which is crisscrossed by about 250 rivers.

SOUTH AFRICAN ANTI-APARTHEID STALWART DIES AT 87

CAPE TOWN: South African anti-apartheid activist Ahmed Kathrada, once jailed for defying a law that discriminated against Indian South Africans, died early on Tuesday. He was 87. The Ahmed Kathrada Foundation said he passed away peacefully after a short period of illness and following surgery to the brain at the Donald Gordon Hospital in Johannesburg, Xinhua news agency reported. "This is a great loss to the ANC (African National Congress), the broader liberation movement and South Africa as a whole," said Neeshan Balton, Executive Director of the foundation. "Internationally, he was staunch in his support for the Palestinian struggle. 'Kathy' was an inspiration to millions in different parts of the world," Balton added. Born on August 21, 1929, Kathrada was introduced to politics when he joined a non-racial youth club run by the Young Communist League. He is survived by his wife, Barbara Hogan, also an ANC stalwart. At 17, Kathrada participated in the 1946 Passive Resistance Campaign led by the South African Indian Congress.

AUSSIE BILLIONAIRE DECLARES WAR ON FOOD WASTAGE

SYDNEY: Australian billionaire Anthony Pratt on Tuesday declared war on food wastage, a problem that costs the nation's economy $15 billion each year. Pratt, a paper, packaging and recycling magnate, said at the fifth annual Global Food Forum in Melbourne that food wastage had become "our nation's hidden crisis" as more than 9 million tonnes of food was wasted annually. "Food waste is not only costly to business and households, but two million children go hungry and it's our nation's hidden crisis," said Pratt, executive chairman of Visy. "Put simply, stopping food waste would effectively double your product sales to end-customers from the same farm footprint." Pratt's speech came as Australian Energy Minister Josh Frydenberg announced plans to convene a forum in Melbourne ahead of the government's first National Food Waste Summit in November. "The challenge before us is considerable. Food waste is estimated to cost the Australian economy in the order of ($15 billion) annually.

'Former PM Oli playing mischief in Nepal politics'

DAKHLA: As Nepal continues to be in political ferment with the Madhes-based parties upset over their demand for amending the Constitution not being met, some prominent Nepali politicians feel the entire situation is due to the "mischief" of former Prime Minister K P Sharma Oli who is acting as a "stumbling block" and pushing the country towards unrest.

"Oli is still acting as a stumbling block to amending the Constitution, and though he is out of power he continues to follow his old game plan. Right now in Nepal, all political exits have been blocked by the Communist Party of Nepal (Unified Marxist Leninist) of which K P Oli is president," Sarvendra Nath Shukla, General Secretary of Terai Madhesh Democratic Party, said on the sidelines of an international conference in Morocco.

Anand Prasad Dhungana, an MP of the Nepali Congress, which is part of the ruling coalition, said "Oli is doing mischief". "Like Germany was divided, there is now an attempt to break Nepal by the ugra rashtrawad (ultra nationalists)... We want that in the constituent assembly the constitution made be accepted and the country is taken to the path of progress. But the UML (Oli's party) wants to play the divisive card," the Nepali politician said on the sidelines of the Crans Montana Forum on Africa and South-South Cooperation. According to both Nepali politicians, it was Oli's party that had put forward the proposal for two provinces for Madhes in the Terai region and his party had signed on it. "But now they are totally opposing it, and did not allow the amendment bill to enter Parliament for six weeks even for discussion," said Shukla, a former Nepal minister.

"His aim is to oppose India... The proposals (for Madhes) he supported four times earlier, now he is opposing them, and calling it India's agenda," he added, whose party is part of the United Democratic Madheshi Front (UDMF) alliance.

Earlier this month, the UDMF pulled out of Prime Minister Pushpa Kamal Dahal's government, accusing it of failing to fulfil the party's demands, including endorsement for a revised Constitution amendment bill, and has threatened a fresh agitation in Nepal. AGENCIES

Clock is ticking on Bob Dylan's Nobel prize money

STOCKHOLM: The Swedish Academy has warned that Nobel literature laureate Bob Dylan has until June 10 to deliver the traditional Nobel lecture, in order to receive the eight million kronor (USD 910,000) that comes with the prize.

The lecture, which can take nearly any form including a short speech, a performance, a video broadcast or even a song, must be held within six months of December 10, the date of the Nobel prize ceremony and the anniversary of the death of the prize's founder Alfred Nobel. No phone conversation has taken place with Bob Dylan in recent months.

Dylan is nevertheless aware that a Nobel lecture must be held on June 10 at the latest in order for a payment to be made, Sara Danius, the permanent secretary of the Swedish Academy, which awards the Nobel Literature Prize, said in a blog post on Monday.

What he decides to do is his own business. Dylan is scheduled to perform concerts in Stockholm on April 1 and 2 and in the southern city of Lund on April 9.

Speculation has mounted that he may give his lecture during his visit to Sweden, though the academy says it has not heard from the singer. AGENCIES

'Fearless Girl' statue to remain on Wall Street

NEW YORK: The statue of the "Fearless Girl" that defies the fearsome Wall Street bull will remain in place for another year, New York Mayor Bill de Blasio announced.

"Sometimes a work of art captures a moment in history and that's what's happened here," de Blasio said on Monday in reference to Donald Trump becoming the US President, and which, he believes, "bodes difficult times for women, the city and the nation", Efe news reported.

But then "this miraculous girl appears and creates such a powerful sensation because she spoke to the moment", the mayor told the media while standing by the statue, which he called a symbol of "standing up to fear, standing up to power, being able to find in yourself the strength to do what's right."

He said: "She is inspiring everyone at a moment when we need inspiration." Installed on March 7 on the eve of International Women's Day, the bronze statue is the work of Uruguayan-American sculptor Kristen Visbal, and at its feet a plaque says "Know the power of women in leadership. SHE makes a difference". The statue accompanies a project by State Street Global Advisors to raise awareness about the gender gap that persists in the business world.

But the "Fearless Girl" had its days numbered on Wall Street and was scheduled for removal on April 2, after the mayor decided to let it stay for what was initially another week. AGENCIES

Kim's body still in Malaysia: Minister

KUALA LUMPUR: Malaysian Health Minister S Subramaniam on Tuesday confirmed that the body of Kim Jong-nam, North Korean leader Kim Jong-un's half-brother who was assassinated here last month, is still in Kuala Lumpur, the media reported.

According to the minister, the body is being kept at the Kuala Lumpur Hospital's National Forensic Institute, the New Straits Times reported. He denied media reports that the remains have been cremated. "There have been so much speculations on the whereabouts of the body, but we need to check that with our forensic team." He further added: "As far as I know, the body is still at the hospital's mortuary."

Subramaniam said Kim Jong-nam's body is still under the responsibility of the Health Ministry until it receives advice from the Foreign Ministry and Prime Minister's Office on the next course of action.

"The negotiations between Foreign Ministry and the North Korean government are still ongoing," the New Straits Times quoted him as saying. AGENCIES
